Product and Process Engineering

Joined in 2016 as a fresh graduate.

What did you study before joining Edwards?

"I majored in Biomedical Engineering at the National University of Singapore, where I studied a wide variety of subjects depending on my interests at that time for the semester."

Why did you choose to join Edwards?

"Not to romanticise the work here, but the product that Edwards manufactures is not just any consumer good. It is a medical device that directly impacts the patient and improves the quality of life."

Since I needed to find a job after graduation, I figured that I might as well work for a company that is doing something meaningful. I was attracted to join Edwards as I believed in the company's purpose and the products they represent."

Are you proud to work at Edwards and why?

"Edwards has a strong patient-focused culture that emphasises on quality and putting patients first. I would say that the products that Edwards represents is definitely what makes me feel proud to be working here."

What keeps you at Edwards today?

"Several key factors come to mind when I think about going to work every day with a smile on my face."

Product – I have great faith in the products that Edwards has been producing and innovating.

People – Whether it's in my own team or cross-functional, I feel really humbled and grateful to have the chance to work with such amazing people from different backgrounds.

Manager – I have the great fortune to be under the tutelage of an awesome boss, who is willing to invest the time and energy to mentor me.

Opportunities – As Edwards is rapidly growing and expanding, this means that there are many learning opportunities for me and also many projects to be involved in."

What does it take to succeed in Edwards?

"Having good knowledge of Edwards' systems and processes is a must; along with the ability to troubleshoot and provide good solutions that balances quality compliance and business needs. The courage to objectively challenge and improve the system are important traits as well."

What would you tell a friend about working at Edwards?

"Edwards is the place that gives you a chance to do meaningful work every day. It is a place where you will find good work-life balance, great colleagues and unlimited learning opportunities to grow your career."
